

15 TOP CAGERS RECEIVE SCHOLARSHIPS

Fifteen top senior basketball players with significant academic and athletic achievements have been awarded $1,000 National Collegiate Athletic Association Postgraduate Scholarships.

Five awards were granted in each of three groups—University Division member institutions, College Division institutions and At-Large. The scholarships may be used for postgraduate study at whatever institutions the recipients choose.

Each winner has earned better than a 3.0 or "B" accumulative grade point average for three years of college work and has performed with distinction on the basketball floor. In addition, each must have been judged capable of doing postgraduate work by his major professor, and each must have signified his intention of beginning graduate studies as soon as possible.

The selections were made by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. Members of the Committee, of which Kansas' Larry Woodruff is chairman, include A. D. Kirwan, Kentucky; Sherman Stanford, Penn State; Samuel E. Barnes, Howard; Capt. John O. Coppedge, U. S. Naval Academy; Max O. Schultze, Minnesota; J. Neils Thompson, Texas; and W. H. H. Dye, Northwestern. The program is in its sixth year. The scholarships awarded annually have grown from 32 to this year's high of 80.

Council, Exec. Committee Meeting

NEW CONSTITUTION TO BE CONSIDERED

The annual spring meetings of the NCAA Council and Executive Committee will be held in late April in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The 18-man policy-making Council will meet April 26-28, while the Executive Committee convenes April 24-25. All sessions will be at the Galt Hotel.

NCAA President Harry M. Cross, University of Washington, will preside at both meetings. Joining him will be Secretary-Treasurer William J. Flynn, Boston College, and Vice-President At-Large Wilford H. Ketz, Union College.

Leading off the Council agenda is appointment of the Committee on Committees and the Nominating Committee for the 1971 NCAA Convention to be held in Houston, Tex., Jan. 11-13.

The Extra Events Committee will report on post-season events certified for 1970-71.

Also, reports will be received from such special or standing committees as Recruiting, Baseball Playing and Practice Seasons, Financial Aid, National Summer Youth Sports Program, Infractions, Ice Hockey, Long-Range Planning and a special committee studying district representation and the feasibility of split voting between University and College Division members.

New Regulations

A considerable portion of the Council meeting is expected to be devoted to study of the first draft of a recodified Constitution and By-laws prepared by George H. Young, University of Wisconsin professor of law, chairman of the Infractions Committee.

The primary goal is incorporation of the many interpretations into the body of the Constitution and By-laws themselves.

After the Council has perused the document, and suggested revisions have been received from member institutions and conferences, a final draft will be presented to the membership this September. The projected effective date is Aug 1, 1971.

The Executive Committee will adopt dates and sites for 1970-71 (and for subsequent years in several cases) National Collegiate Championship events and National College Division Championship events; review reports on the 1969-70 meets and tournaments held to date; and receive reports from the following committees: College Football; Baseball Rules and Tournament; Soccer Rules and Tournament; Advancement of Football; Public Relations; University Basketball Tournament; Gymnastics and Trampoline Rules and Meet; and Wrestling Rules and Tournament Committee.

Also in attendance at the meetings will be NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, Assistant Executive Director Arthur J. Bergstrom, Assistant Executive Director Charles M. Neinas and Director of Public Relations Thomas C. Hansen.

NCAA MEMBERSHIP REACHES HIGH OF 730

The NCAA's total membership will move to a new high of 730 during 1970.

By categories, there are currently 634 active members, 31 associates, 40 allied members and 25 that are affiliated. Of the actives, 225 are classified University Division and 409 are College Division.

New additions to the active membership since September 1, 1969, when the totals were last reported in the NEWS, are: Drew University, Madison, N. J. (Dist. 2); York College, York, Pa. (Dist. 2); Lambuth College, Jackson, Tenn. (Dist. 3); University of Maryland, Baltimore County, Baltimore, Md. (Dist. 3); University of North Carolina, Willington, N. C. (Dist. 3); Tougaloo College, Tougaloo, Miss. (Dist. 3); Saint Leo College, Saint Leo, Fla. (Dist. 3); Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville, Ill. (Dist. 4), transferred from associate; Purdue University, Calumet Campus, Hammond, Ind. (Dist. 4); St. Cloud State College, St. Cloud, Minn. (Dist. 4); Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio (Dist. 4); Earlham College, Richmond, Ind. (Dist. 4); Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, Ariz. (Dist. 7); and Boise State College, Boise, Idaho (Dist. 7).

The University of Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Pa., and Christian Brothers College, Memphis, Tenn., have been added to the list of associate members. The U.S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association has become an affiliated member.

The current total includes three institutions to be added to the active membership September 1, 1970. They are: Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va. (Dist. 3); The University of North Carolina, Charlotte, N. C. (Dist. 3); and Lake Superior State College, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. (Dist. 4).

The membership of the NCAA has grown considerably in the past ten years. In 1960 the total stood at 567. Of those 567 members, there were 510 actives, 11 associates, 32 allies and 14 affiliates.

A personal viewpoint . . . FREEDOM FIGHTERS

Regardless of one's political persuasion, a true sports fan has to admire the punching style of the 39th Vice-President of these United States. For speed, style and footwork, he does not compare with Sugar Ray Robinson, who had it all. Instead, ring experts Nate Fleischer and Jack Cuddy probably would rate him with Tony Zale, the rock-jawed, indomitable middleweight, who planted his feet, hit his opponent as hard as he could and took his very best in return. That is about the way Spiro Theodore Agnew of Towson, Maryland, took on the communications industry recently.

Judging from the fallout, the Veep's rapier right obviously landed where it hurt. The flak is still falling. It was to be expected that the television commentators and some of the slick-paper magazine editors would scream F-O-U-L. (Sandor Vanocur of NBC spoke bitterly of an unwarranted and inexcusable attack; even the aloof, sophisticated NEW YORKER magazine blew its cool and wrote of "the gravest threat in our memory" to constitutional rights and press freedom.)

It was hoped, however, that the leaders of the Fourth Estate—the public press which has inherited and represents the finest reportorial traditions of this nation—would respond with the good judgment and analytical calm that the criticism warranted.

Not so.

"Incalculable Psychological Damage"

Norman E. Isaacs, executive editor of the Louisville COURIER-JOURNAL and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, spoke darkly of intimidation and said the criticism had done "incalculable" psychological damage.

And on it has gone, even to special resolutions by local Sigma Delta Chi chapters.

It took Otto Fuerbringer to put this emotional charade into proper perspective. A former street-pounding reporter from St. Louis, who became editor of TIME magazine and who now is vice president of TIME, INC., told a Sigma Delta Chi meeting in Chicago the following:

"One way (to restore confidence) may be to give the word 'objectivity' a renewed status. Objectivity was once the hallmark of American Journalism, embraced by editors and taught in all journalism schools. It became an article of faith, a stamp of purity. It fell from high esteem because it became rigid dogma. Carried to its extreme, it inhibited writers and led to insipid reporting. The revolution against it was successful. By common consent, most journalists today agree that objectivity is impossible to achieve, that complete objectivity is an illusory goal.

"But, it seems to me, a parallel doctrine that could be dangerous has now sprung up: The feeling that since it is impossible to achieve objectivity it is nonsense to try for it. The operative word today is fairness, a desirable quality that should certainly be high in the lexicon of all reporters and editors. . . . I know I am dealing a little bit in semantics here, and I know the protestations that this can arouse. But after all, objectivity includes fairness under its very broad umbrella, as, of course, it also includes truth, and a striving for truth. Objectivity in no way implies blandness, or the too-careful balancing out of facts so that no story results. It does not call for the elimination of judgment, nor does it bar criticism of institutions or individuals, or even attacks on them, or hard-hitting investigative reporting. But it does call for a certain humaneness. It does imply that in the long run a well-rounded story is not only fairer, but truer. It recognizes the intelligence of the reader and doesn't force him to supply his own counterbalance. In short, it makes for greater credibility, and a little additional credibility won't hurt the American press right now."

What a welcome contrast, for example, to the recently expressed view of the editor of NEWSWEEK who seemingly believes all of his reporters and stringers are objective and infallible . . . and it doesn't matter what an interviewee thinks, it is what the rewrite man at NEWSWEEK thinks he thinks.

Nostalgic Stimulation

This journalistic "ex" still nostalgically believes that the profession of reporting is one of the most stimulating and critically important of all the professions. It was almost 20 years ago when the change was made from flat objectivity to interpretive writing, at least by the press associations. Thus, by simply changing a verb (John Doe "said"; John Doe "argued") a reporter could alter substantially the impact of an interviewee's statement. The reporter's responsibility, therefore, became more demanding — but even more critical became the role of the rewrite man who handles the final copy in many instances and does not participate in the on-the-scene action. (Old rewrite hacks like this one customarily took solace from the epigram, "Great stories are never written, they are rewritten.")

The uproar caused by that hard punch from the Towson, Maryland, challenger (6'2"; 190 lbs.) suggests that some of our good friends in the communications industry protest too much. It would be hoped that instead of pouting, they would examine their principles and staff instructions to see that the story presented as news (as opposed to editorial opinion) fairly represents the position and views of the particular group or individual. It appears to be a growing custom to use the out-of-context quote or the loaded question to support a preconceived story plot. That approach simply constitutes rank dishonesty.

It is not anticipated that much change will take place in the television industry because it is a business in conflict with itself. The tube represents an entertainment medium which engages, on the side, in reporting. The advertisers and the network executives read the Nielsen ratings for the newscasts just as critically as for "Laugh In". Chet and David have to work at holding the audience right along with Johnny Cash.

Hopefully, however, Mr. Fuerbringer's credo will stimulate soul searching among some of his "news" magazine associates who (this is going to sound upper middle age) employ many reporters who have had neither the objectivity nor the fairness doctrine hammered into their head by a hard-nosed bureau chief or city editor.

The Basic Tenets of Journalism

On balance, it is the day-to-day newspaper and press association reporters who have the hour-by-hour pressure of meeting deadlines who generally do the best job with the fairness doctrine. Most of them seem guided by the basic tenets of journalism. (In East Hall on the University of Iowa campus, they were a part of first year journalism; i.e., the story must contain "who, what, when, where, why and how" it happened.)

And, God bless 'em, the working day-to-day reporters are willing to listen (with a few notable exceptions).

Taking on the establishment is today's "in thing." It appears, however, that it depends upon whose establishment is being taken on by whom. The kids can take over Old Siwash's administration building, capture the lead time on the 6 o'clock news and stimulate considerable sympathetic commentary for wanting to create a better world. The Veep, all by himself and without even throwing a Molotov cocktail, took on the Eastern communications establishment and—BANG! He drew a far more critical "press" than Mark Rudd did when good ol' Mark did his thing at Columbia.

It appears that too many communications executives are more thin-skinned than their day-to-day targets. They apparently have a standard knee-jerk reaction to criticism—claim purity of purpose and retaliate by charging an unwarranted attack upon freedom of the press. Freedom of the press is essential, but it carries with it a power that is as corruptible as political power is corruptible. It would help to restore the credibility of which Mr. Fuerbringer speaks if there were less self-righteous expostulations and a dedicated reemphasis of what the great profession of reporting really is all about.

Walter Byers

P.S. Is it such an antique idea to use the news columns of newspapers and newsmagazines to provide "objective" or "fair" or "balanced" reporting while management's appraisals and evaluations are presented in "editorials" or "analysis" and "feature" stories?

Led by four members of the University of Denver's National Collegiate Skiing Championship team, a squad of 28 United States athletes and officials is in Finland for competition in the April 2-9 World University Winter Games. The team is sponsored by the United States Collegiate Sports Council.

Included are 20 athletes who will compete in Alpine and Nordic skiing and figure skating at several sites in that country.

Wilkinson Wins Physical Fitness Leadership Nod

"He is an outstanding person in every way."

Wilkinson was honored for his leadership of NSYSP in the summer of 1969. He was appointed to head the NCAA's effort in the five-million-dollar program in February of 1969.

Opportunity Illustrated

He turned the theory that the schools and universities could inspire ghetto youngsters through sports into fact on 100 campuses in 54 cities in 26 states. Some 43,000 youngsters participated in NSYSP, and reports of glowing success in teaching sports and illustrating opportunity came in from all parts of the nation.

Despite the late start, the Program was well organized and well administered.

Wilkinson was a successful high school basketball coach and administrator in Kansas City, Mo., before joining the NCAA staff. He also was instrumental in the establishment of a summer program for youngsters in that city before assuming the directorship of NSYSP.

Two Track Meets Certified

Two track meets have been certified by the NCAA Extra Events Committee, chairman Stan Bates has announced.

One event, the Ty Terrell Invitational, will be conducted May 16 in Beaumont, Tex.

The second is the Compton Invitational, which will be held June 6 in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

BULLETIN

Although WUWG results received as the NEWS went to press were incomplete, the USCSC team was making an outstanding showing in Alpine skiing. Eric Poulsen, with two gold and a bronze medal in three events had won the combined Alpine honors. Rosi Fortna had won three gold medals.

College Park, Md.—John Wooden now has a National Collegiate Basketball Championship watch of his own. The UCLA coach has given all five of his previous prizes to members of his family.

This year's trophy he'll keep for himself.

The Bruins continued to dazzle the basketball world March 19-21, winning a fourth consecutive NCAA crown, stretching their winning streak in the prestigious tournament to a record 24 games and earning a sixth championship in the last seven years.

This year the Bruins did it without Lew Alcindor, and did it without a close game in the tournament. In the West Region, UCLA disposed of Long Beach State, 88-65, and Utah State, 101-79. New Mexico State fell in West Championship, 93-77.

That put the Bruins in the Championship game against a Cinderella team, Jacksonville, with the tallest front line in college basketball. UCLA paid no attention to the Dolphins' height advantage, beating them off the boards, blocking shots, and running a well-disciplined offense.

When it was over, Coach Wooden was accepting the trophy again, after an 80-69 win. Next year he'll have all but one of the 1970 starters returning.

Team Effort

This was a team effort, with three of the Bruins playing well enough to be named on the All-Tourney team. Sidney Wicks was named most outstanding player. John Vallely, the only senior on the UCLA team, and forward Curtis Rowe, also were named All-Tourney.

New Mexico State's guard Jimmy Collins and 7-2 Jacksonville center Artis Gilmore were the other all-stars.

Jacksonville jumped off to an early lead, gaining a nine-point advantage midway through the first half, 24-15. But then, with Vallely leading the way, the Bruins battled back to finally move in front 37-36 with just over a minute to play in the half. By the break it was UCLA, 41-36.

Jacksonville couldn't close the gap in the early minutes of the second half, and when Wicks started to score it was all over. The 6-8 leaper hit a tip-in, a 15-foot jumper and two free throws, and the Bruins were up by nine.

After Gilmore fouled out at 1:50 remaining, Wooden cleared his bench.

Wicks had dominated play in the early going, blocking shots, rebounding and playing tough defense all over the court. At 6-8, he startled 7-2 Artis Gilmore by blocking four shots. Wicks ended up with 17 points and 18 rebounds in the title game.

Rowe, Vallely and center Steve Patterson all scored well, with Rowe getting 19, the other two 17 each. They rebounded well too, as UCLA pulled in 50 rebounds to 38 for Jacksonville.

Jacksonville had to earn its way to the University of Maryland's Cole Field House through perhaps the toughest regionals of the four. The Dolphins had to beat Western Kentucky 109-96 just to get into the regional.

Then it was Iowa, champ of the Big Ten, waiting. Jacksonville won, 104-103. Top-ranked Kentucky was next, and the Dolphins pulled this one out 106-100.

Bonnie's Battle Height

At Maryland, St. Bonaventure, without its big man, Bob Lanier, gave the Dolphins all they could handle before bowing, 91-83. The size of the Dolphins wore down the Bonnies, despite exceptional play by sophomore Matt Gantt, who missed the All-Tourney team by just two votes.

In the third-place game, St. Bonaventure was again faced with a tall club. New Mexico State, disappointed at being put out of the tourney for the third year in a row by UCLA, came back for a 79-73 win.

Collins of New Mexico State became the 12th leading career scorer in the tournament, with 218 points in three years.

Jacksonville broke two tournament records, most field goals in a five-game series formerly held by Houston (174) with 180, and most points in a five-game series, scoring 479 to beat Houston's 442.

PHILLY TEXTILE WINS CD CAGE TITLE

Evansville — Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science used a balanced, precision offense to win the 1970 College Division Basketball Tournament, 76-65, over Tennessee State, March 13.

The Textile starting combo of Jim McGilvery, John Pierantozzi, Carl Poole, Mike O'Rourke and Bruce Shively needed only 12 minutes of relief in the final two games of the tournament, and that was due to a bit of foul trouble in the Rams' 79-63 win over California Riverside in the semifinals.

While Tennessee State depended upon Ted McClain and Claude Grant with 29 and 14 points, respectively, each of the Philly starters managed at least a dozen points, with Pierantozzi's 19 topping the list.

The Rams never trailed in either the semifinal or championship games. Against Tennessee State, their margin remained between two and six points until a spurt in the last eight minutes of the first half opened up a 40-27 halftime lead.

The winners' longest lead came early in the second half at 43-27, but with 4:31 to play, the Tigers had narrowed the gap to 66-62, mostly through use of an aggressive full court press. The Tigers cooled at this point, failing to score for the next three minutes while the Rams rushed to a 74-62 advantage.

Tennessee State could get down only 26 of its 80 shots for a cool 32.5 per cent from the field while the Rams hit on 29 of 62 for 46.8 per cent. The Tigers' Lloyd Neal picked 21 rebounds to lead State's 50-44 edge on the boards.

Tough Regional

The Rams, coached by former Textile star Herb Magee, survived the tough Mideast Regional to reach the round of eight. In the regional with the champions were Ashland, Cheyney State and Youngstown. All four teams were ranked in the top twelve nationally and had a combined win-loss record of 91 wins and 10 losses. Textile defeated Youngstown, 79-52; then bested Ashland, 45-28. At the finals, the Rams ran over American International, 101-53, and upended California Riverside, 79-63, in the semifinals.

HERB MAGEE

Riverside, coached by Freddie Goss, a starter on UCLA's National Championship team in 1965, grabbed third place from Buffalo State, 94-83.

Tennessee State's road to the title game was a bit rocky. After downing Bellarmine, 84-77, in the first round, the Tigers overcame a 10-point deficit in the last five minutes to oust defending champion Kentucky Wesleyan, 75-73. South Dakota State was a 92-89 victim in the quarterfinals and Buffalo State fell, 101-80, in the semifinals.

Although McClain got most of the kudos, Claude Grant, an unheralded reserve, blossomed into one of the stars of the tourney. Against South Dakota State, Grant surpassed his season's totals with 31 points and 26 rebounds. Although he played in only four tournament games, the sophomore center scored 73 points to rank 11th in that department. Only McClain with 146 outscored him on the Tiger squad.

The tournament's leading scorer was Randy Smith of Buffalo State, who finished with 153 points for a 30.6 average.

Philadelphia Textile finished the season with a 29-2 record, including 28 straight wins. Its only losses were to Villanova, 52-57, and Mount Saint Mary's, 80-83, in overtime. Tennessee State ended with a 21-8 mark.

Texas-Arkansas Rematch Highlights '70 TV Schedule

A 1970 college football television schedule of 35 games has been announced by ABC-TV.

Eleven national telecasts and 24 regional games are planned.

Included are such highlights as a repeat of 1969's Texas-Arkansas titanic, another Alabama-Mississippi clash, UCLA and USC, Michigan and Ohio State, the Army-Navy game and a look at such quarterbacks as Bill Montgomery of Arkansas, Jim Plunkett of Stanford and Archie Manning of Ole Miss.

Another interesting match for the nation's viewers sends Notre Dame against Missouri's defending Big Eight champions Oct. 17.

Four night games will be shown, four unspecified regional games will be selected shortly in advance of Nov. 14 for viewing on that date to permit the network to focus on key conference contests, and a national "wild card" game will be selected for presentation late in the season after top contenders for national honors emerge.

Stanford-Arkansas Is Opener

The season opens Sept. 12 with Stanford at Arkansas, which matches two of the nation's top quarterbacks in Plunkett and Montgomery.

After a regional date, Penn State places its long winning streak on the line at Colorado Sept. 26.

On national telecasts the next three weeks, Alabama meets Mississippi, Texas plays Oklahoma at Dallas and Notre Dame is at Missouri.

The next national date is Nov. 21, when Ohio State hosts Michigan with revenge on its mind. Then, on successive weekends, USC-UCLA, Houston-Florida State, Army-Navy and Arkansas-Texas get national coverage.

On Dec. 12, the series concludes with regional telecasts of the NCAA's four College Division I bowl games.

commitment are inevitable influences towards just such a separation, and it would be a disservice if the subtle influences of the public image of sports were to accentuate and exaggerate the gulf.

I firmly believe that the strength and attraction of intercollegiate athletics lies in their being an integral part of the college experience. The Postgraduate Scholarship Program serves by substantiating and reinforcing that reality. By doing so it adds measurably to the stature of college athletes, college athletics, and to that of the NCAA.

Sincerely,
PETER M. DAWKINS

Letters to the Editor

(The letter below was written to NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers by former Army football great Pete Dawkins. The occasion was the conclusion of Colonel Dawkins' term as a member of the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. In it he expresses his feelings regarding the importance of that program and his personal philosophy of intercollegiate athletics. Editor)

Dear Walter:

It has been a real pleasure serving these past six years on the Postgraduate Scholarship Committee. The committee has been an excellent one, well chaired, and Fannie Vaughan has provided not only most competent administrative assistance but patience and tolerance of our eccentricities as well.

I feel that the scholarship program is an important and profitable one. It is beneficial, first of all, because it provides assistance to young men seeking to further their education who have given of themselves in college athletics. Equally as important, the scholarship program serves the purpose of demonstrating that intercollegiate sportsmen are not the leaden, Neanderthal types they are sometimes caricatured as being.

It is particularly important today, I feel, to work against such an image if intercollegiate athletics are to continue as the vital part of the college experience they have come to be in our country. At the same time that television has brought college sports to the attention of a broader and broader public, there has been a tendency for athletics to be displaced from the center of student attention on campuses today.

As the range of student interests has widened, it is not surprising that other activities have come to compete with sports for young peoples' attention. In my opinion this is as it should be. What would be sad, though, is if this natural diffusion of interests were accompanied by a withdrawal of athletes from the mainstream of college life. The ever-growing demands of excellence in terms of training and total

INTERPRETATIONS

Judging by the number of requests received for interpretations of the applicable rules, considerable interest exists among the staff members of NCAA member institutions concerning summer camps.

Accordingly, the summer camps interpretations last printed in the NEWS in April of 1969 are repeated below for the information of coaches and administrators.

NOTE: Directors of athletics should take note of the following interpretations and advise their staff personnel accordingly. Please be advised that employment of staff members in specialized sports camps enrolling prospective student-athletes could place the member institution in violation of NCAA Bylaw 6-3.

SUMMER CAMPS

In applying NCAA legislation and interpretations which are applicable in this area, a distinction is made in some instances between two types of summer sports camps, as follows:

Specialized Sports Camp—is defined as one which places special emphasis on a particular sport or sports and which provides specialized instruction, practice and usually competition.

Diversified Sports Camp—is defined as one which offers a balanced camping experience, including participation in seasonal summer sports and recreational activities, without emphasis on instruction, practice or competition in any particular sport.

The Association's recruiting legislation applies to these camps only when a member institution's facilities or athletic staff personnel are involved.

The rules of the various high school athletic and activities associations should be respected in each instance. Frequently, their legislation will differentiate between the specialized and diversified camps.

The following rulings of the NCAA apply to all member institutions and apply equally to both types of camps unless otherwise indicated:

- (1) No prospective student-athlete may participate in the camp. For purposes of this rule, a prospective student-athlete is one who is eligible for admission to college or who has enrolled for any academic study following completion of his junior year in high school.
- (2) No prospective student-athlete [as defined in (1) above] may be employed at the camp.
- (3) No enrollee may receive benefit of reduced or free tuition, room and board, transportation or any other camp cost unless there is a published and announced policy in this regard and it is applied uniformly to all qualified camp candidates without reference to their athletic ability or reputation.
- (4) Enrolled student-athletes of the NCAA member institution may be employed as counsellors in diversified sports camps except that not more than one member (with eligibility remaining) of the previous year's freshman or varsity football squads and not more than one member (with eligibility remaining) of the previous year's freshman or varsity basketball squads may be so employed.

The above ruling also applies to specialized sports camps except that: (a) in those instances of specialized camps emphasizing football, no member (with eligibility remaining) of the previous year's freshman or varsity football squads of the NCAA member institution may be employed or otherwise participate in the camp proceedings, and (b) if the sports camp specializes in basketball, the same prohibition applies to members (with eligibility remaining) of the previous year's freshman and varsity basketball squads.

If an enrolled student-athlete is employed as a counsellor in a specialized sports camp, it is essential that his duties are of a general supervisory character and any coaching or officiating assignments represent not more than half of his work time.

- (5) An enrolled student-athlete of the NCAA member institution may be listed as a staff member of the camp (subject to the above restrictions) but his name or picture may not be used to advertise or promote the camp.

NW Louisiana State Takes CD Gymnastics Title

Mankato, Minn.—Outstanding performances from Paul Tickenoff and John Ellas in the last event of the day, the horizontal bar, gave Northwest Louisiana the College Division Gymnastics Championship at the meet conducted at Mankato State College.

Tickenoff scored 8.95 and Ellas 9.40 in the final event to boost the team to victory over Southern Connecticut and Springfield College. Northwest ended with 160.25 points to the 159.30 of Southern and the 158.90 of Springfield.

Tickenoff had gained the All-around title on Friday with a score of 104.10, edging teammate Ellas, who was All-around champ last year. Ellas scored 103.00 this year.

Tickenoff also was the most outstanding performer in the individual event competition, winning the titles in floor exercise, long horse vaulting and parallel bars. He also was fourth on the horizontal bar.

Three Lead Champions

Coach Armando Vega's championship team was a three-man show, with Bruce McGartlin also performing well, finishing sixth in the All-around competition, and hitting over a 9.0 in three events during the team competition.

This is the third year the CD Gymnastics championships have been conducted, and Southern Connecticut and Springfield have finished in the top three all three years. Neither has been able to pull out a first place, however. San Fernando Valley won the first two titles, spent this year building, and could be back strong again next year.
